

As a customer of independent ISP sonic.net, I very much appreciate the services of such a locally-owned and -operated service. Residents in our area (50 miles north of San Francisco) now have the choice of cable from one source and DSL and dial-up connections from several sources. We are a mix of urban and extremely rural residences with a mixture of needs and preferences. Granting a monopoly or near-monopoly for this service to phone companies would badly erode the choices we now enjoy and the range of services. Please support individual choice and independent services by requiring phone companies such as BellSouth, SBC, etc. to provide access to all ISPs. Thank you.
